

CSR REPORT 2017

Group
YOUR JOB, OUR WORK

Dear Stakeholders,

Almost 20 years have passed and, our Mission “to contribute to the evolution of the labour market and to emphasise the social and personal value of work” is still a core focus of our global CSR Strategy and initiatives. We grew as a global player in the human resources industry and became more and more aware of the importance we play in the labour market and the community we operate in.

In 2017, the delivery of our CSR Strategy and Mission mainly relied on the relationships and level of engagement we have with our key stakeholders, especially our own employees. According to this, in December 2017, we launched the first internal employee survey: the Gi Group Energy Matrix. The purpose of the survey was to give all Gi Group employees an opportunity to provide feedback on their own health and wellbeing, on their approach to change, on the level of trust that they have in the company and on their overall ‘energy’ levels. The results and feedback we received have been both very positive and confirmed our efforts as an employer. Even more important, they identified the essential areas where we need to improve the overall individual Gi Group employee experience, and helping us to shape many of our future CSR initiatives.

In its 2nd year, “Destination Work” engaged about 300 Gi Group employees and helped more than 3,000 people across 11 Countries. Main objective of this global CSR initiative was to strengthen our commitment in creating value for our stakeholders by taking care of their needs, meeting their expectations and contributing to the evolution of the labour market.

To increase both the range of interactions that we have with external stakeholders and the volunteering opportunities for our employees, we carried out an internal CSR survey to ask for additional ideas on potential activities connected to our Mission and Vision. The results confirmed the major will of Gi Group employees in putting efforts on activities related to students and young people, mothers returning to work, long term unemployed orientation and employability-related training and workshops, increasing support from clients, national and global partners, NGO’s etc. We are aware of the ever-changing labour market and the role that technology plays in it. With this in mind, within our Strategy we are using technology to develop and provide learning materials, as well as career guidance tools: our aim is to help people achieve their career expectations through adequate and tailored tools.

We are proud to present you this fourth CSR Report and the initiatives that comes with it, showing you the progresses made so far, giving you an insight on the shape of our CSR Strategy and on the positive influence we are going to exert on the labour market during the next 20 years.

Gi Group Energy Matrix

In December 2017 we launched our first global internal employee survey – the Gi Group Energy Matrix. Its purpose was to measure the level of Energy, Engagement, Trust and the Approach to change of Gi Group People at both global and local level; allowing us to define the company's strengths and identify areas where action may be required to improve the Energy, the Engagement and the Trust of Gi Group people.

The survey was conducted across the 24 countries in which Gi Group operates, excluding Italy where the survey will be conducted in early 2018.

We were encouraged by the overall high level of participation in the survey, 67.3% – with some geographies hitting an outstanding 100%. Gi Group Energy Matrix focused on a number of different factors.

- Organizational Wellbeing: the evaluation of employees' views on the organisation's performance against key criteria which included:

Management and leadership
 Professional development
 Quality of worklife
 Communication
 Identity and values
 Internal organisation
 Assessment and rewards

- Employee Wellbeing: the overall "wellbeing" of our employees. This area evaluated:

Psychological wellbeing
 Physical wellbeing
 Interpersonal wellbeing
 Value based wellbeing

- The Level of Trust, with regards to:

Colleagues
 Direct manager
 Management team
 Company as a system

- The approach to change

Respondents were then grouped into one of four areas based on organisational and individual wellbeing.

Overall findings were extremely positive: 78.9% of Gi Group International's population is made up of people who actively "Spread Energy"; contributing to the development of the company.

Detailed results of the survey will be shared within the organisation in early 2018, followed by the launch of focus groups and initiatives to further build on these results.

During 2018, initiatives developed by each single country will be monitored on a quarterly base; Country Managers and local HR Managers will boost action plans aimed to increase the level of employees' engagement and develop specific projects to improve targeted areas (i.e. performance and rewards).

We will repeat the Gi Group Energy Matrix in two years' time to allow us to continue to assess the level of energy, engagement, trust and approach to change of Gi Group employees.

Environment

Protecting the environment is an important part of the Group's CSR strategy, despite the relatively low environmental impact of the market sector in which Gi Group operates.

The most significant efforts to protect the environment in 2017 focused on:

- Reduction of paper usage
- Re-cycling activities
- Energy consumption saving

Reduction of paper and ink-cartridge use has been strongly championed across the Group.

Countries that have dramatically reduced their consumption include Brazil and Romania, where paper consumption fell by 180kg vs 2016 while the use of ink cartridges reduced by 110. In Italy we also saw improvements with the average consumption of paper per employee decreasing from 18.88 paper-boxes in 2016 to 18.85 in 2017 (in 2014 it was 24.08). A double digit reduction in paper usage was also achieved in Spain and the UK.

Other impactful recycling initiatives implemented across the Group included:

- Brazil – reduction in the consumption of electricity, water plastic (plastic cups);
- Portugal – the use of filtered water instead of bottled water in all branches;
- Romania – recycling of plastic across the entire branch network;

- Russia – recycling of batteries;
- Serbia – collecting plastic bottle lids for recycling and using saved funds to buy aids for disabled people.

Energy consumption savings were achieved through many local activities; the most significant were:

- New car policies, fostering the use of low-emission cars in Italy, Spain and UK;
- Business travel policies which support the use of low emission means of transport, with specific projects in Italy and UK;
- Encouraged and increased the use of ICT tools (MyGiGroup digital portal, Skype, Video Conferencing etc);
- Continued the transition towards Gi Group buildings using green (renewable) energy (Italy alone saved 1,094.07 tons by having all branches and HQ offices use green energy sources).

Voluntary work

Volunteer activities are one of the pillars of Gi Group CSR strategy.

Action Plans
2018

2018 represents a very important milestone for Gi Group: it's the year the company is celebrating its first 20 years of successful activity.

20 years during which Gi Group has always been delivering services aimed to help people and companies to match their respective needs, 20 years during which Gi Group has committed to fulfill its Mission – through contributing, as a key player and on a global basis, to the evolution of the labour market and to emphasize the personal and social value of work.

Gi Group's 20th anniversary will not only be dedicated to celebrations, but even more to start planning the next 20 years of challenges and success.

Gi Group CSR program will continue to be an important part of the company development – through the daily contribution of all its employees and through dedicated initiatives with a social impact.

The most significant CSR commitments of Gi Group for 2018 are:

Destination Work

In 2018 Destination Work, Gi Group's main global volunteering project will continue for the third year.

Aiming at boosting the employability skills of specific social groups (young people, students, long-term unemployed people and over 50), Gi Group's employees across the world will deliver workshops, training sessions and presentations. This will happen either at Gi Group premises (local branches or Headquarters) or, typically, inside schools.

E-Learning tools to boost our commitment for employability

The enhancement of employability skills will also be achieved through the design and delivery of digital learning tools. The e-learning initiatives will be delivered either in partnership with specialized external providers, either by producing digital learning materials such as videos and vlogs aimed at sharing knowledge and tips about employability and the broader labour market.

Specific target groups will be addressed and all the learning material will be available for those interested to boost their employability skills and labour market awareness.

Work-life balance

Gi Group employees are a key stakeholder – being the individuals who, every day, actively contribute to fulfill the social values of the company's activities and social programs.

During 2018 Gi Group aims at promoting its employees wellbeing and raising awareness about the value of our work by organising specific initiatives such as inviting staff relatives in the offices, thus mashing up the professional side and the private life of each staff member.

Digital transformation

Technology and innovation are constantly changing the job market, however not everyone is aware of these trends and of how to exploit them. Therefore, learning initiatives will also be addressed to fill this knowledge gap by raising awareness on the digital transformation affecting the job market and job research strategies.

Connection of sports and career

The correlation between sports and career is often subtle: it's about wellbeing but also about teamwork, self-awareness and resilience. Gi Group aims at promoting the connection between these two worlds, targeting in particular disadvantaged groups, by engaging with testimonials or partnering with sports organisations.

Environment

In addition to local initiatives, Gi Group commits itself to implement, in 2018, an Environmental Management System for its Milan HQ building based on UNI EN ISO 14001:2015 requirements.
